

UNIVERSITY OF CORDOBA (UCO)

General Data

The UCO is heir to a century-old historical and cultural legacy as well as a passion for knowledge, tolerance, and harmony among civilizations, that have made the city that houses our institution a paradigm for humanity.

This equilibrium and harmony is reflected in the three areas in which the UCO undertakes its activities: Food and Agriculture, Science and Technology; Humanities and the Legal and Social Sciences; and the Health Sciences; each with its own particular characteristics.

This balance is also manifested in the quality of its teaching and research, ranking it among the top academic institutions in Spain. The UCO is one of the foremost research institutions in Spain; a distinction that will be further consolidated with the ceiA3 (Agrifood Campus of International Excellence), and the creation of the Rabanales 21 Science and Technology Park and the Maimonides Institute for Biomedical Research. Our university is an international leader in the agrifood field, one of the institution's main vocations; without overlooking the importance of the humanities sector in a city that is known worldwide for its artistic and monumental heritage.

A young, dynamic university, dedicated to research and in constant evolution, the UCO is firmly committed to the problems and needs of the community at large. As a public institution, it connects closely with the society it serves, but is also dedicated to aiding other peoples and countries. The UCO also maintains strong ties with the business sector, while also structuring much of its own activity around an entrepreneurial vision. Most importantly, it is an institution that is not only committed to training qualified professionals, but to supporting and encouraging its students to grow as people and as citizens.

University Rovira i Virgili (URV)

Since 2004, the University Rovira i Virgili (URV) prepares an annual report on the visibility of the scientific output of its researchers with the help of international reference bibliographic databases included in the Web of Knowledge platform, a global benchmark for the study and dissemination of results of scientific activity of authors, institutions and countries, using indicators of quantity and quality of publications. The 2010 report, entitled “Producción Científica del Sistema Universitario Español 2010” (Scientific Production of Spanish University System 2010) concluded:

SIR World Report 2011 Excellence Rate Report

The current report is based on quantitative data of citation and publication which shows bibliometric indicators that unveil some of the main dimensions of research performance of worldwide research-devoted institutions.

The report shows six indicators that help to evaluate the scientific impact, thematic specialization, output size, and international collaboration network of the institutions.

The period analyzed in the current edition covers 2005-2009.

The University of Cordoba is ranked in first position among andalusian universities and ninth within Spain.

The Agrifood Campus of International Excellence (ceiA3)

The Agrifood Campus of International Excellence (ceiA3) is a joint initiative between the universities of Almeria (UAL), Cadiz (UCA), Huelva (UHU), Jaen (UJA) and Cordoba (UCO).

Headed by the UCO, the objectives of the ceiA3 are ambitious and require a firm social commitment given that the agrifood sector of Andalusia provides a promising future for our students as well as other young people of our community.

The project seeks to modernize and internationalize our universities so that they become a driver of change to transform the traditional economic model into a sustainable productive model based on knowledge and innovation.

The ceiA3 promotes this change by bringing together institutions in the same geographical area that generate knowledge, among them universities, research centers, and technology parks. It aims to encourage the transfer of this knowledge to society and strengthen the university's role as an innovative institution that generates new knowledge for the benefit of society at large.
